The Horrors of the Turkish War

LONDON Sept 8.—The special correspondent of the Standard telegraphs from Belgrade that the Turks on Monday occupied the left bank of the Morava Alexinatz is in their power It is utterly deserted The Servians at Belgrade are in no condition to take the field The Turks committed great atrocities during and after the battle Friday Hideous stories reach me of rape and the murder of the wounded A Russian was tied to a tree and roasted and girls were outraged and flayed alive The towns are filled with thousands of fugitives The government talks of victories and keeps the public in the dark about the danger which is threatening them There is now no force between the Turks and Belgrade

A telegram from Ragusa says intelligence has been received there from Sclavonic sources that Dervish Pasha attacked Rogani in the district of Piper on Wednesday and was repulsed and driven over the river Moraca toward Podgori The Turks have encamped at Scavah where they will get reinforcements

A dispatch from Belgrade says Minister Ristic, in a note touching the Turkish cruelties in Servia charges that 46 villages in the vicinity of Alexinatz have been burned, and that the Turks do not respect the Geneva convention and fire on ambulances as soon as the red cross is seen

Correspondents of the Times and Daily News confirm the reports of outrages committed on the wounded Servians by the Circassians and Bashi Bazouks The Times' correspondent says when the Turks reach Kruzevats the situation will be deplorable The enemy will then command four roads leading to every part of Servia as the Turks now in the field number 150 000 the country will soon be overrun by them

A dispatch to the Daily News dated Belgrade Sept 4th says Alexinatz is held by 15 000 Servians with ten batteries The Servian main army is divided into two bodies one co-operating with Gen Hervavatich who is on Turkish territory in front of Gramaun and threatens the Turkish camp at Nisch The other is quartered in Mokatavo and Klausura pass and road to Kruzevats, its object being to enter the Morava valley below Belgrade

The Turkish attack of Sept 1st on Alexinatz was a strategic stroke to divert Tchernayoff's attention from the latter's movement Tchernayoff saw through it, leaving a strong garrison at Alexinatz withdrew the main body of his army in the direction of Kruzevats and Rankova pass to meet the Turkish turning movement, and there the next fight will take place

Gen Tchernayoff is sending troops and artillery there from Belgrade The Turks have halted near Alexinatz between Adrovatz and Petarilavatz, apprehending an attack from Gen Horvatovich No news has been received here respecting peace negotiations The Servians would prefer a continuation of the war to humiliating conditions of peace

LONDON, Sept 8.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Belgrade says that the war drags on slowly and incessantly, the situation becoming more complicated A little stream rising in the Jastravatz range and flowing at right angles to the Morava enters that river nearly opposite Belgrade A force going down the valley of this stream can take the Belgrade position in flank and would find an open road to Kruzovatz and the interior of Servia and also to the valley of the Morava behind the Servian position It is easy to see the importance of this small valley A strong Turkish force occupies the Jastravatz hills, its object is to gain the stream mentioned so as to outflank the Servians at Belgrade Tchernayoff is at the village of Djunis, where there is a break in the heights now fortified by the Servians, the capture of which is necessary to the success of the Turks Tchernayoff's strongest fortifications are here The Turks have advanced and been repulsed several times

A dispatch to the same journal from Belgrade reports that 220 Russian private soldiers arrived there Thursday Their advent is considered significant, as all Russians who have previously come to enter the Servian army have been officers or Red Cross men Orders have been issued that any Servian, who mutilates himself to avoid military duty, shall be punished by death or imprisonment.

Podgoritza's forces intended for the relief of Medun forming the Turkish right wing were withdrawn yesterday and the positions immediately occupied by Servians

PORTLAND DALLES AND SALT LAKE RAILROAD

DIRECTORS MEETING

At a meeting of the directors of the Portland Dalles and Salt Lake Railroad Company held at their office in the city of Portland Present J M Strowbridge C P Church Gideon Tibbetts J G Glenn and W W Chapman There being a quorum present W W Chapman was elected President J M Strowbridge Vice President J G Glenn Treasurer and W S Chapman Secretary

The President presented the following report which was read approved and ordered to be filed

To the Board of Directors of the Portland Dalles and Salt Lake Railroad Company—This being our first meeting after the annual election of Directors it is expected that I will give you a statement of the progress and present condition of this important enterprise

The public benefits both national and local to be derived from the construction of the Portland Dalles and Salt Lake railroad are so great and so well understood that almost every individual in the community feels it to be an absolute necessity Although all along the brief history of Oregon there may be repeated warnings of the approaching necessity for this road, yet we never began in earnest to press the enterprise until about five or six years ago If previous to that time we had acted upon a reasonable degree of foresight or if the necessity for it had been as keenly felt as it is now we might have been able at this day to sleep in the palace car from Portland Oregon to Portland Maine But unfortunately for our country these warnings were cast under foot and compelled to give away to huge schemes of speculation and jobbery without regard to the real fitness of things which neither capitalists nor speculators had learned to respect Time and experience has taught the former, and the latter are monuments of their misguided judgment and ill-advised schemes.

Two classes of capitalists are frequently connected with enterprises of this sort—one that before it will invest, must see an incidental and immediate return and the other that which lays the rails drives the spikes and sets the locomotive in motion As the opportunities for speculation, in becoming merely the promoters of an enterprise like this, have greatly diminished, that class have become scarce, while the real capitalists whose money constructs the roads and sets the locomotive in motion are as abundant and as anxious as ever but they are more careful Plausibilities and magnificent grants of public land are not enough, close inquiry and reliable data are applied As comprehending the whole inquiry it must be the needed road Any road may be a needed road however circuitous as any road is better than none It must be the needed road for all the demands of public necessity national and local which it proposes to accommodate Of this the real capitalist, who only looks to a sure road and fair return for his investment, must have reliable information Without enumerating the facts, I venture to say, without the fear of contradiction, that our enterprise embraces every element necessary to meet the inquiry Is it the needed road, both national and local? No fears therefore, need be apprehended, if we but use a reasonable degree of effort in its behalf Success will be sure.

If it has not reached complete success, five years of constant and persistent effort in working, talking, publishing, legislating, and a submission to close scrutiny, has placed it in the eye of impartial capital, as the most valuable enterprise on the continent, and for its intrinsic value has obtained a standing of superiority above all others on the Pacific slope, while in Oregon it is accepted as the only guaranty of our commercial supremacy and sure in the hands of our people, against powerful monopolies and crushing corporations It should therefore be nursed at home, retained in the hands of our people, and be the subject of just and wise legislation

It is an established fact that it may be put under construction for a less aid than any other road of half its length On more than one occasion it has neared success, lacking but a concert of action and reasonable support to make it complete And still the opportunities if availed of make its prospects better than they have ever been Two proposals were made for constructing the road, by parties whose reliability and earnestness were indisputably assured, upon a State guaranty of 5 per cent for 20 years on one million of dollars, together with exemption from taxation for a like period But such a guaranty being deemed by the executive unconstitutional the further effort to obtain it was abandoned Subsequently these proposals were modified requiring accurate surveys and detailed estimates to show the cost of construction not to exceed $30 000 per mile This would require a considerable sum of money for which there could be no return except in the general public benefits to be derived from the construction of the road The money was not obtained the surveys and estimates were not furnished and further negotiations were for the time suspended I have no doubt however but the negotiations may be renewed, and others opened with assurance of success

Close observation induces me to believe that the actual cost of construction of the road between the Columbia river and Salt Lake, economically constructed will not exceed $20 000 per mile And that with a moderate aid from the State, it may be put under construction at that sum But complete surveys and detailed estimates are indispensable to any successful negotiations The want of these has been the great drawback Without them successful negotiations are next to impossible

I propose if approved by the Board to ask the Legislature of the State for an appropriation of $30 000 for the purpose of defraying the expenses of a complete survey and detailed estimates.

These surveys and estimates are also necessary in the effort to obtain two certain important amendments to the North Pacific extension bill, now pending in the House of Representatives of the United States One requiring them to build by sections annually from Portland eastward on the south side of the Columbia river to the junction of the Salt Lake line at Umatilla and thus to shorten that line as well as accommodate the great commercial interests of the State The construction of the locks at the Cascades will make it especially important that the section of the North Pacific from The Dalles to the junction of Salt Lake line at Umatilla be constructed immediately on the south side of the river The proposed amendment referred to cannot be prosecuted successfully without careful surveys profiles and detailed estimates showing the route on the south side is practicable as the commercial side of the river and that the road on that side can be constructed as cheap or cheaper than upon the north side

The other important amendment to the North Pacific bill is that the land grant upon the north branch of that road be transferred to the Salt Lake line between the Columbia and Salt Lake. But as in case of the proposed amendment the surveys maps and detailed estimates must be had as well as a general railroad map exhibiting our whole line in connection with other roads—the rivers harbors agricultural and mineral districts and the location of our principal cities and towns

With proper efforts we may undoubtedly obtain this transfer of land grant It is not a further or new grant but a readjustment of grants already made—taking it from an unnecessary line and placing it upon a line of great public importance and present need This is the view taken of it by Senators opposed to new grants but yet pledge themselves to its support

It has been questioned whether this land grant will build our road Undoubtedly it will assure its construction It is 240 miles long by 20 miles wide containing 1 000 sections or 3 800 000 acres—a bonus that will put the road between Salt Lake and the Columbia river under construction in 60 days from the date of transfer, and make connection within three years And if the North Pacific be required to build their road to Umatilla by the same time as I have stated the through connection would be complete

These two reasonable amendments to the North Pacific are of supreme importance to our State and no part of it more than to the city of Portland

This corporation is organized for the public benefit and not for private speculation The services to be performed in obtaining these surveys and estimates, and prosecuting these amendments at Washington, as well as negotiating for the construction of the road are for the benefit of the State at large it is therefore reasonable to suppose that the State will readily bear the expense The sum required is about $30 000 To deny it so that the work cannot be done this fall will be to paralyze efforts to obtain legislation in Congress worth to the State many millions of dollars

That our Senators and Representatives in Congress and the representative of the company may be fully armed for the successful prosecution of these amendments, I suggest that you ask the Legislature to memorialize Congress especially in this respect I suggest that by resolution you request the Legislature also if it should be found constitutional to do so to aid in the construction of this road to the extent of interest at 5 per cent on two million of dollars for twenty years and exempt it from taxation for that period This I have no doubt would of itself open its construction should we fail in obtaining the transfer of land grant before mentioned

Complaint has been made through one of the public journals of the city, that we have not given the citizens and property holders of Portland sufficient opportunity to become interested in and share in the management of the enterprise, and this is supposed by some to be the reason why we have not had a more united and liberal support from this city in the prosecution of this enterprise No one appreciates more than myself the effort of the moral force of a united public sentiment, saying nothing of the advantages of pecuniary aid in preliminary efforts Whether these objections are well founded or not every seeming cause for them should be removed If by filing amended or new articles of incorporation, and opening the door more widely to property holders and capitalists friendly to the construction of the road, we may materially further the enterprise, I would not for a moment object, and would on the completion of the organization upon such terms and under such regulations as you may advise, turn over all the interest of the company to the new organization

You may desire to know something of the receipts and expenditures of the enterprise. I have devoted my time and labors exclusively to its interests for five years, and have received from the city of Portland and vicinity $2 300 which is the sum total of receipts outside of a few small sums on the line of the road

With prompt and united action on the part of our citizens, success will be assured I can but hope that every well wisher of our State will do his duty, and if so all will be well I am thoroughly convinced.

THE LOCKS QUESTION

PORTLAND, Sept. 9, 1876

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

A correspondent "76," in a recent issue of your paper, returns to the suggestion that the only way to avert the horrors of eternal and abject servitude to the transportation powers that be is to buy the Locks. As this correspondent is very assiduous in this advice, having made the suggestion before we could only wish he would fortify his proposition with some good reasons instead of generalizations thereon and so relieve us of the apprehension that he is covertly in the employ of the owners of the Locks, which restrains us from taking kindly to his advice as we could if given in the way of "distinguished consideration" If 76 is gently insinuating the wishes of the owners of the Locks, and we believe he is, it behooves us to be very cautious about receiving his advice, and so I wish to briefly adduce a few reasons why it need not be regarded at all necessary to purchase and still be nominally free from the grasp of monopoly, insomuch as the ownership of the Locks can at all effect

The Locks Company have covenanted with the State "that they will pass boats in the order in which they arrive at either terminus charging therefor fifty cents per ton for freight as toll" This a fair concession for the $200 000 voted by the State in aid of their construction, and let legislation be had looking to the thorough enforcement of this compact and every possible guarantee is given to our producers that no monopoly can fasten itself on the productive industries of the country for any serious length of time

The thralldom that now oppresses the people with high freights in the Willamette valley would by this time have been broken, had there been no uncertainty with reference to the status of the locks and whether there was sufficient guarantee under the law to compel the Locks Co to pass boats in the order in which they arrive But the owners of the locks have been zealous in the way of innuendo to create the impression that they would refuse to conform to their compact with the State as witness the result of the interview between editor of the Farmer and the president of the W R T & L Co wherein the editor is cavalierly told that they bought the locks to make money out of them and if the people have any rights there they have to go to the courts to adjudicate the question As much as to say and Mr Clarke was so impressed that the locks would be closed to any other boats than those belonging to and in the interest of the monopoly

This position assumed by the owners of the locks has deterred people from building boats because of the uncertainty existing with reference to the validity of the compact and this the legislature must set at rest absolutely and irrevocably The State must stand sponsor to the people that this compact cannot be violated with impunity and that the creature of its creation shall not override and overslaugh the just claims of its creator with this mooted matter at rest, not another season will roll around before the monopolists will be glad to carry freight at just one half their present oppressive tariff, because of the menace to them of Locks absolutely free for the farmer to use with his own water craft—a consideration which will serve to hold monopoly in check more effectively than can be done by any other means To encompass this result it should be the province of the Legislature to create a Canal Commission whose duty it shall be to become the guardian of the interests of the State and to see to it that boats are passed in the order in which they arrive and should the Locks Co fail or refuse to do this of their own volition the Canal Commissioners must be backed by all the authority of the State to compel the performance of this duty It is folly to think of buying the locks, for the State can under no circumstances even under the right of eminent domain obtain possession of the said locks for less than they are mortgaged for—$200,000—and this is more than they are worth as an investment for interest on this sum at 12 per cent amounts to $24 000 per annum and the probable cost of keeping in repair and operating the same will be say $10 000 more aggregating a total of $34,000 per annum

This amount would represent 50 cents per ton, as toll on 68 000 tons of freight, which is more than it is probable will pass through the said locks until the total tonnage of the Willamette valley exceeds 200,000 tons, and before that era arrives the twenty years will have expired within which time the State has the right to take possession according to Sec. 3 of the law

By Sec 9 of said enactment it will also be seen that when the locks are purchased the State of Oregon must put to the credit of the school fund two hundred thousand dollars So that any liability incurred in the purchase of the locks will involve the tax payers to the extent of $400,000 to the school fund [illegible] what must be paid to the Locks Company.

Give us a guarantee that the aim of the law shall not be subverted, and the [illegible] is are better off without the fee simple of the [illegible] than with it.

SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 9, 1876.

TILDEN'S INCOME TAX.

We give place this morning to a communication explaining or excusing Mr. Tilden's conduct in giving, for the year 1862, an income return $20,000 less than that which he lately swore he received in that year. The explanation is that he earned this extra $20,000 the year previous, so that it was not properly income of 1862. This explanation, like the story of the man who vomited up three crows, grows larger as it gets farther away from home. When traced back to its origin the three crows are reduced to "something nearly as black as a crow." The Eastern papers make the defense in a much milder form than our Democratic friend makes it. They urge merely that such an explanation as is now given may be the true one, and that since such an hypothesis is not unreasonable it should be adopted rather than assume Mr. Tilden to be guilty of any misstatement in the oath to his income return. It is altogether probable, however, that the defense will soon come to be hypothetical and take the form of a positive statement of a fact; so our friend, "Democrat," is only a little in advance of the organs of his party in putting it thus strongly. But what is to be done with the further fact that in the years following 1862 Mr. Tilden declined to give in his income return, and actually paid tax on a much smaller income than he received? That fact, so far as we have observed, is not disputed by any one. Under the law the assessor of internal revenue was required to ascertain, as best he could, the income of persons who declined to furnish the prescribed statement; and it is alleged that by the operation of that law Mr. Tilden escaped taxation on a very large proportion of his vast income, thus swindling the government and increasing the burdens of the people whose conscientiousness enabled the assessor to make full assessments upon them. Before the explanation offered can be accepted as final, Mr. Tilden the great reformer and representative of honest administration must clear up these subsequent matters. Taken together they make out a case against him which does not comport very well with the role he is now playing.

THE ORGAN'S DEMAND FOR A CAUCUS.

Our evening neighbor is greatly exercised at the prospect that a considerable number of the Democrats in the legislature will refuse to subject their consciences to the dictation of a caucus of manipulators. It is to be hoped these members will stand firm for the right. If they do, the rule of the secret conclave of politicians is at an end. It is urged that the abandonment of the caucus will disorganize the party. If that were so, it would be reason for adhering to a rule devised only to enable the politicians to cheat the people. The disorganization of a political party is no valid objection to the adoption of a course which is clearly [illegible] of honest legislation. Legislators are elected, not to build up any party, but to represent the wishes and interests of the people. Any member who surrenders his convictions of duty in obedience to the behests of a party caucus, does so in disregard of his obligations to his constituency, and should be, and, in the present temper of the people, would be, repudiated by them. The sentiment of the country has condemned the caucus, and a man can not obey the caucus, against his individual convictions of public good, without misrepresenting the people who have placed him in the legislature. Of course the organs of the party managers will cry out against the exercise of any individual judgment by the people's representatives; but the party organs reflect not the wishes and views of the people, but the purposes of the scheming politicians, whose selfish interests are hostile to the desire of the people for honest and economical government.

ROUGHING IT.

We have been roughing it. Roughing it is a nice thing when conducted on scientific principles. The way to do it scientifically is to put on a suit of very rough clothes, load a spring wagon with blankets, robes and good substantial food; supplement the load with sauces, jams, jellies, condiments, and, in general, all the goodies which one does not get at home; take shot guns and rifles and fishing tackle, to an infinite amount and go forth. Then be sure to make such drives as to land at a farm house every night, where there will be no sort of use for the blankets or grub, where good soft beds are to be had at little or no cost and where the game one may chance to stumble upon in his easy marches will be cooked and served up in good style. That is scientific roughing it, and it is altogether pleasant. On such a trip one can put on a great many airs, and do it cheap.

The place to go for this scientific roughing it is Eastern Oregon. There is plenty of game that one can get at without much effort, and plenty of generous whole-souled people who will do the hard work, so the person who goes there to rough it need not bother himself with anything except roughing it.

On such a trip, if one will take the trouble to open his eyes occasionally he is liable to see a good many things. He will see that the hardy American pioneer has pushed into every nook and corner and established a home for himself and family; that on the narrow bottoms that lie along the numerous little streams are grown such crops of wheat, oats, barley and rye as must fill the stranger with astonishment and admiration; that such corn and peaches and melons, and "garden truck" are produced as the denizen of any other part of the known world has not been accustomed to behold; that innumerable cattle and horses and sheep feed and thrive over incalculable expanses of bunch grass; and in this connection he will observe that, except close along the margins of the streams the bunch grass is just about as abundant as it was twenty years ago when the cattle were not upon the thousand hills or the boundless plains. He will likewise discover that the filling up of the narrow valleys has caused the pioneer to commence an investigation of the high lands, and that as a result of this experiment fair crops of grain are growing in various places on the high lands, and that in some of the depressions in the elevated plains as heavy harvests of oats are reaped as in the best bottom lands. Finally, he is likely to arrive at the conclusion that Eastern Oregon is not yet understood by the general public, and that in the future—the very distant future—when the greatest pasture in North America is grazed off till stock-raising is no longer profitable, and when the gateway to that region shall be open to anybody who wants to engage in carrying to the seaboard the products of a vast wheat garden, Eastern Oregon will furnish thousands of cargoes of bread for the people of the old world.

Thorough organization is the one thing needful to carry Oregon for Hayes and Wheeler and Richard Williams this fall. Every precinct should be well organized, to the end that every Republican voter may come to the polls on election day. Recent elections afford no very reliable data by which to calculate the relative strength of the two parties; but from the best information that can be collected, it is believed the State is Republican by a considerable majority, and is is only necessary to have a full vote polled in order to insure the election of the Republican candidates. All propositions to secure votes by the use of money should be discountenanced, and effort should be directed solely to the thorough organization of the people into clubs, to the end that all may by induced to take an interest in the election. Let the formation of clubs proceed as rapidly as possible so that all the ground may be occupied in good time, and let every Republican feel himself called upon to cast his vote without fail.

Reports from the scene of conflict in Servia give horrifying accounts of cruelties perpetrated by the Turks. One statement is that a number of children's shoes were found containing the dissevered feet of the little ones. Another reporter states that the Turkish soldiers attacked a small village, and after driving off the Servian forces, murdered the women and children and tossed some of the latter on their bayonets. It is probable that many of these stories owe their origin to the lively imagination of the writers and their strong desire to transmit startling reports; but it is unhappily too true that the Turks have been guilty of many enormities, the effect of which has been to withdraw from them what sympathy existed in their favor among other nations.

The Republicans of Clatsop, Columbia and Tillamook counties, have nominated Daniel K. Warren for Joint-Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Solomon H. Smith. Mr. Warren is an excellent man and in every way well qualified for the office. He is intelligent, thoroughly informed on all the interests of the section of the State which he is designated to represent, and the greatest recommendation—a conscientious man who will set the public good above all personal or local considerations. He should receive, and he will receive, the unanimous vote of the Republicans and, it is to be hoped, will be elected.

The international rifle match will soon be contested at Philadelphia. Already the teams which are to engage in it have arrived. Among them are teams from Canada, England, Ireland and Australia, besides that which is to represent our own country. If anything is to be judged from practice trials and previous matches, the American team is likely to win, as the marksmen composing the team have made better practice records than any of their competitors. Besides, this team is mainly composed of the same men who defeated the English marksmen a year ago in England.

Party is an obstruction and a nuisance, unless it subserve the purpose of placing men of sound principles and good moral character in control of the government. If you have no reason for supporting a candidate except that he has been nominated by the party with which you are accustomed to act, you have no reason at all. Put the test of individual worth to the candidates before you and follow where the decision of that question leads. That is the duty of citizenship, and it will elect Williams to Congress in November.

A report comes over the wires from Madrid that W. M. Tweed and his nephew Hunt have been arrested and are held in custody in a fortress at Port Vigoon in Spain. Numerous reports have previously been received announcing Tweed's presence at various places from Canada to Cuba and Belgium, but this is the first time his arrest has been reported. It is to be hoped that this news is true and that the greatest thief out of office may be brought to New York and made to disgorge some of his ill-gotten gains.

CITY.

SHOT BY ACCIDENT—A few days ago we learn that while two young nimrods named Henry Johnson and Arthur Harris were out [illegible] in the vicinity of the Foster settlement, one of them was accidentally shot. After traversing the country for sometime the [illegible] had occasion to separate. Johnson's [illegible] was at length attracted to what he [illegible] to be a deer through the brush. He [illegible] his gun at the object which unfortunately proved to be his companion. The [illegible] through Harris' clothing [illegible] away the flesh from his ribs upon the right side. He was severely but not dangerously hurt, and fearing a repetition of the [illegible] he called loudly for his friend declaring that he had been shot. Johnson was very much frightened and so chagrined at the accident that he could scarcely do enough for his [illegible]. Surgical aid was summoned and Harris, [illegible] able to be about, is very sore and [illegible] hope to be able to do anything for some time to come.

FROM SAN DIEGO—A former resident of [illegible] who left here last September for San Diego to live, writes as follows to a friend in this city: "We like the climate well, but that is all we have here: nothing but climate and [illegible] There is but little raised in this part of the country, in fact this is no place for [illegible] We have here from Oregon lumber, flour, potatoes and apples. I think this is one of the most barren countries I ever saw. It [illegible] of crossing the plains, but as we are here we must make the best of it for the [illegible]. It is very dull here now and no [illegible] of it being better. My advice to my [illegible] up there is for them to take no notice [illegible] the newspapers say, but remain in [illegible] where they can live by cultivating [illegible] that cannot be done here.

EPISCOPAL VISITATION—Bishop Morris returned a few days since from his second visit to the churches and missions east of [illegible] He was absent from home [illegible], holding services and preaching [illegible] following places: Walla Walla, Waitsburg, Dayton, Lewiston, Lapwai, Maxon's [illegible] in Walla Walla valley, Weston, [illegible], La Grande, Cove, Union, Baker City and Canyon City. Five persons baptized and seventeen confirmed [illegible] and one at the Cove, two at [illegible] and eight at Canyon City, making [illegible] confirmed in this portion of the [illegible] year. On Saturday the 20th the [illegible] by the Rev. Dr. Nevius, laid [illegible] of St. Thomas Church, Can[illegible].

[illegible] SENTENCE.—The celestial [illegible] took away a pair of shoes Thursday [illegible] Marks' store, on Front street, [illegible] committed to the county jail three [illegible] by Judge Adams. [illegible] Jow turns out to be the identical [illegible] who effected an escape from the [illegible] sometime last December. Ira Mor[illegible] had him out sawing wood, and [illegible], Jow quietly "lit out," and [illegible] no more in these parts until arrested [illegible]. Justice travels tardily sometimes, [illegible] the slow-going tortoise in the [illegible] wins the race. Jow probably thinks [illegible].

[illegible] SUICIDE.—A correspondent writing from Hubbard station yesterday, sends [illegible]: Early this morning the sad [illegible] was brought to this town that an [illegible] respected citizen of this community, [illegible] C. Dayton, had been found dead [illegible] in front of his own house. The [illegible] at the coroner's inquest, are [illegible] temporary aberration of his mind [illegible] his own life, by shooting himself. [illegible] He has been ailing for some [illegible] this sad misfortune he [illegible] and brother to mourn his [illegible] the community has lost a valuable [illegible].

The Oregon City Woolen Manufacturing Company received on the last steamer from the East some new machinery which when set up, will enable them to turn out a better class of goods than usual.

Steamer City of Salem left this morning for Corvallis—her last trip, until the river gets higher. Tuesday she starts on regular trips to Salem—leaving here on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, returning on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

MUSICAL NOTES.

We understand that there is a probability of Prof J H Brenner becoming the organist at Trinity Church.

We understand that a movement is on foot to consolidate the two bands of the city—Northwestern and City.

The choir at the First Baptist Church, under the leadership of Mr C C Morse, is one of the best in the city. Mrs Morse is organist, Dr Rex, violoncellist, and Mr Ridler, violinist.

Members of the Amphion Quartette Club are holding regular rehearsals and practicing on campaign music. They have added to their repertoire a number of Hayes and Wheeler songs, which will probably be rendered in good style at the meetings of that club in this city.

Thursday night a party of serenaders was out calling on their lady friends. The musicians consisted of one banjo player, two whistlers and two harmonican performers. Those who were awakened by the sweet (?) and entrancing strains of music, supposed it emanated from some Celestial quarter, on account of its unearthly character.

Mr Simon Harris is expected to return to Portland from the East in a few weeks. There will probably be a musical reception tendered him on his return. Mr Harris was one of the leading spirits in the organization of the Amateur Musical Society of Portland, and up to the time of his departure was the musical director of the same. During his absence Prof Brenner has been conducting the rehearsals.

Regular rehearsals are held by the Amateur Society. The society is now in a prosperous condition, and contemplates incorporating soon. A movement is now on foot to increase the membership of the Society by the addition of what is designated as "subscription members." Under the constitution subscription members are entitled to all the privileges of active members except to participate at rehearsals. They are allowed to attend concerts given by the society, free and also rehearsals.

FIRE MENTION.

Several new members were added to Willamette No 1 at their last meeting.

The engines belonging to Nos 1 and 2 are in splendid serviceable condition.

The engine house of Protection Co No 4 is now being renovated. The "masheen" is in splendid trim for service.

Tiger's house is being overhauled and generally renovated. The pump connected with the engine became disabled a few day ago, but has been repaired.

Columbian No 3's engine is now in capital order to respond to the tap of the bell. At present the company is stronger numerically than it has been for some time.

The time for holding the annual election for Chief Engineer is approaching and the boys are agitating the question of "who shall be our next Chief?" From present appearances there will be three candidates in the field for Chief and probably twice that number for First Assistant. The contest promises to be a warm one.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES

There will be services at the Baptist Church on Sunday at 11 A M and 7 30 P M. Rev Mr Huff will officiate.

MATINEE—LAST APPEARANCE.—This forenoon the Georgia Minstrels will arrive on the express train from Albany and a matinee performance is announced at New Market theater at 2 P M to-day. This is for the express accommodation of ladies and the little people, an opportunity which should not be allowed to pass unimproved. To-night the company will appear for the last time as they start for the Sound Monday morning. After visiting the principal points along the Sound the company will proceed to San Francisco and soon after sail for Australia. Last opportunity to see them remember.

THE TURF

Lively times are promised this afternoon at East Portland trotting park. A trot race will be run between [illegible] R H Thompson at [illegible] a sweepstakes [illegible] 60 yards. This will be one of the most [illegible] in the State and [illegible] have been staked on the [illegible]. The persons named are known to be [illegible] and a warm and closely contested [illegible] may be expected. After the foot race a trotting match will come off between [illegible].

NOTES FROM SALEM

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE

Our regular correspondent, under date of Sept 8th sends the following:

W. C. Griswold's new water works are being pushed rapidly forward.

Montgomery Queen's circus is being heavily billed in this city.

Hon J S M Van Cleave of East Portland is registered at the Chemeketa Hotel.

Drake's new foundry is now enclosed and adds materially to the appearance of our city.

The fixtures of the executive offices were to-day moved to the new State Capitol buildings.

Col E H Cann is moving into his new and elegant residence opposite the Episcopal Church.

Secretary of State Chadwick has his hands full in preparing the new halls for legislative purposes.

Wm Barker and M G Harwood have been appointed special police to serve until after the State Fair.

No minstrel troupe ever drew as well in this city as did the Georgians on Monday and Tuesday evenings last.

Nought but pure unadulterated Democracy will indulge in legislative pie this session unless appearances prove deceitful.

The senior class of the Willamette University this year numbers eighteen students. They may not all pass examination however.

Already are the members of the State legislature beginning to arrive and the probabilities are that all will be present at the first roll call.

The city is alive with excitement this evening over the supposed presence of the Marion and Scio safe robbers. A close watch is being kept on the suspicioned parties.

The board of State Capitol Commissioners has just been reorganized. J. M. Scott has been elected president, and R H Dearborn secretary. It is once more Democratic.

Prof Collier arrived this evening and will at once assume his position as one of the faculty of the Willamette University. Prof Wm Gray has had temporary charge of the department.

The district schools have reopened under the most flattering prospects. A N Steeves has charge of the South Salem and Miss Maria D'Arcy assists Marie E Smith at the Central.

OREGON STATE TEMPERANCE UNION

The fourth annual meeting of the Union will be held at the city of Salem Tuesday, September 19, 1876.

Article 2d of the constitution reads: The meetings shall be composed of delegates duly elected from temperance societies, churches and religious bodies which enjoin and enforce the duty of temperance upon their members as a rule of their faith and practice, provided that each organization represented shall furnish its delegates with proper credentials, certified to by its chief officers.

Article 4th. Each session of the Union shall be organized by contributing and life members.

Article 9th. The meetings of the Union shall be held annually at the city of Salem on the third Tuesday in September.

THE COURTS.

POLICE COURT—ADAMS, J

FRIDAY, Sept 8 1875

Ed Kennedy for getting into a drunken brawl with a crowd of half breeds was sentenced to the city jail for the term of 20 days. Kennedy had just served out a sentence of the same duration.

Jack Vincent for assault and battery was fined $5 and costs amounting in the aggregate to $18 35. Defendant paid that sum and stalked forth to freedom.

Jow, for purloining a pair of brogans valued at $2 50, was sentenced to the county jail for the period of 90 days.

Up to a late hour last evening, only two arrests were made: Mrs Smallden for getting on a chronic drunk and a Chinaman. Both are in jail.

MILITARY NOTES.

Under date of the 4th the following order was issued: Chief commissary of subsistence is authorized to purchase in open market at lowest obtainable rates, 5 tons hay for feeding beef cattle, 1 500 pounds potatoes, 100 pounds onions, for shipment to Fort Wrangel Alaska, also 12 mutton sheep, 5 tons hay for feeding beef cattle and mutton sheep, 2 050 pounds potatoes, 430 pounds onions and 6 000 pounds barley, for shipment to the post of Sitka Alaska, also 4 500 pounds hay to subsist 12 beef cattle, under contract, and 12 sheep, en route to the post of Sitka Alaska.

LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.

The subject of Dr Harvey's next lecture at Good Templars Hall, on Sunday evening next, will be the Great Ice Time and the Advent of Man on Earth. This was when the mastodon and mammoth roamed around and some of their recently found bones will be used as illustrations, their loan having been kindly offered by Mr Coplen for the occasion.

For the latest styles in clothing and at the cheapest prices call on Kohn, the leading clothier.

To enjoy a pleasant evening, visit the "Fountain," presided over by Peter Wilhelm. None but the best liquors, wines and beer. The celebrated Brunswick, Blake & Co's billiard and pool tables.

Men, says Adam Smith, are naturally unsentimental. A man will scoop the bottom out of an egg without thinking that the mother of that egg is perhaps a hundred miles away in the rain. Every man however is thinking about dropping in at Beck & Waldman's and ordering a new fall suit.

Take in Barne, while peregrinating through town to-day.

The greatest bargains ever offered to mechanics and housekeepers to buy tools and necessary things for home cheap. Make an early call. Variety store on First street next McGinn's bakery.

REMOVED

Mrs S Lord would inform her friends and patrons that she has removed her Parlors for Restoration of the Hair, also Exercise Rooms and Agency for the Health Lift, to Rooms 20 and 21 Monnastes Building, First street, between Morrison and Yamhill. Only one easy flight of stairs.

The No 8 Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine uses a straight needle and sits flat on the table. It was awarded the first prize at the New York Institute and at the Southern States Exposition this year.

W I ADAMS, M D, A M, LL D, corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price by medicated electric lightning cream baths and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is, in the main, entirely original and works almost miracles as his numerous patients will attest. Is extraordinarily successful in treating female complaints.

Sore eyes speedily relieved. The worst form of piles cured, and the most malignant cancers eradicated root and branch without the use of the knife or the money refunded.

A COLD SEEMS A SMALL AFFAIR.—Most people neglect it. Who minds it? Yet a cold may turn to consumption and then follows almost certain death. Take a cold in time then, that is, take Dr D Jayne's Expectorant, the well known standard remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Complaints, and your Cold will disappear as well as all apprehension of lung [illegible].

TILDEN'S INCOME RETURN

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

The New York Times foolishly garbled the answer of Gov Tilden in the railroad suit, published the extract with his oath to income return of 1862 and boldly charged the candidate for the presidency with having taken a false oath. The accusation was a startling one, and the only possible excuse for the Times is that it was inexcusably ignorant of the law applicable to such matters. Reading a portion of the answer [illegible] by the Times along with the context it plainly appears that the $20 000 received in 1862 was paid for professional services rendered by Gov Tilden in the three years prior to 1862.

Justice Lowell in 1862 on the circuit held that the surplus earnings of a bank made before the passage of the income tax law were not liable to the income tax [illegible] and in the same case that the profits on sales of real estate bought prior to but sold during the income year were not liable to the tax.—See Merchants Insurance Co vs McCartney, 1st Lowell's Decisions, page 447.

The Supreme Court of the United States in Gray vs Darlington, reported in 15th Wallace page 63, held that the increased value of property held for a series of years was not taxable as the income of the year in which it was turned into money. The $20 000 though paid in 1862 was earned before that year and therefore was not in any sense part of the taxable income for 1862. I trust to your courtesy in asking a place in your columns for this communication.

DEMOCRAT

CONDENSED CIDER.

HINSDALE, (N H) July 17 1876

To the Commissioner from Oregon: In one of our local papers a few weeks since were some remarks by a man who was visiting the Centennial. Looking at an article under your supervision which somewhat resembled rubber belting, you or some one in attendance cut off a small piece and requested him to taste it; on doing so he was surprised to find that it was condensed new cider. This is something new under the sun, and if it proves to be what it is represented to be it will become an article of very great commercial importance. For this reason: Our fruit trees, especially apple trees, are failing in this part of the country, and what fruit we do get is full of worms; cider made from such fruit is fit only for vinegar. If we can procure this article from Oregon we shall have the pure juice of the apple unmixed with vermin, for Oregon is the best fruit producing State in the Union. I suppose you have no time to answer any communication while at the Centennial. But will you not write me on your arrival at home in the fall and let me know to what extent it can be made, and what would be its cost, conveyed to this far off region. I am inclined to think that a market would be open here requiring hundreds of tons of it. I should feel very much obliged if it were in your power to send me a few ounces by mail. Respectfully yours,

L TAYLOR

A Theory Borne Out by Facts.

The theory that lack of vigor is the underlying cause of disease is receiving daily confirmation of the most positive kind in the cure of dyspepsia, liver disorders, and kidney, bladder and uterine complaints by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the ruling remedy for maladies attributable to weakness. This superb tonic is never employed without the most beneficial effects. The liver, the bowels, the organs of urination, and indeed the entire system acquires both vigor and regularity through its action, since it gives a healthful impetus to every failing function. It is an incomparable specific for chills and fever, and other maladies of a malarial type, prevents their attacks, is a reliable means of counteracting the effects of undue exposure or fatigue, and soothes as well as strengthens the nervous organism.

THE EVENING WIND

Spirit that breathest through my lattice, thou
That cool'st the twilight of the sultry day
Gratefully flows thy freshness round my brow
Thou hast been out upon the deep at play
Raising all day the wild blue waves till now
Roughening their crests and scattering high their spray
And swelling the white sail I welcome thee
To the scorched land thou wanderer of the sea

Nor I alone—a thousand bosoms round
Inhale thee in the fulness of delight
And languid forms rise up and pulses bound
Livelier at coming of the wind of night
And, languishing to hear thy grateful sound
Lies the vast inland stretched beyond the sight
Go forth into the gathering shade, go forth
God's blessing breathed upon the fainting earth!

Go, rock the little wood bird in his nest,
Curl the still waters bright with stars and rouse
The wide old wood from his majestic rest
Summoning from the innumerable boughs
The strange, deep harmonies that haunt his breast
Pleasant shall be thy way where meekly bows
The shutting flower, and darkling waters pass,
And where the o'ershadowing branches sweep the grass

The faint old man shall lean his silver head
To feel thee thou shalt kiss the child asleep,
And dry the moistened curls that overspread
His temples, while his breathing grows more deep,
And they who stand about the sick man's bed,
Shall joy to listen to thy distant sweep,
And softly part his curtain to allow
Thy visit, grateful to his burning brow

Go—but the circle of eternal change,
Which is the life of nature, shall restore,
With sounds and scents from all thy mighty range,
Thee to thy birth place of the deep once more
Sweet odors in the sea-air, sweet and strange,
Shall tell the homesick mariner of the shore,
And, listening to thy murmur, he shall deem
He hears the rustling leaf and running stream

MR BURNETTE'S TEST

The day was yet young, when a traveler left the train at the little platform station at Norton, and, leaving directions about his baggage with the baggage-master, sauntered leisurely up the dusty road He had engaged summer board by letter, and was seeking his destination.

"Straight ahead till you come to it"

This was the station master's direction, so straight ahead Lucien Gaylord proceeded, till he paused to look at a "tableau vivant," framed in flowering vines A girl, seated upon a shady porch, shelling peas Her broad hat was pushed back, leaving exposed a face purely oval, delicately featured, creamy of complexion, with brown eyes and golden hair drawn simply back in waving bands, to fall in clustering curls around the slender throat Most unlike rustic beauty was the high bred face, the slender white hands, the self-possessed [illegible], but yet the dress was a quiet brown calico, with white apron ruffles and handcuffs

While Lucien Gaylord looked at her, she lifted her eyes and saw him. He raised his hat, asking

"Can you direct me to Miss Strong's?"

"It is here," was the answer, and opening the gate, Lucien entered, mentally concluding that the silvery sweet voice was as deliciously refined as the face.

"My Aunt Maria's new boarder? You had better rest upon the porch, before I call her It is a tiresome sunny walk from the station"

Perfectly easy, with just sufficient cordiality in the tone for welcome, Lucien accepted the invitation, and started a conversation, watching the dainty fingers shelling peas, with a touch that was light yet firm Miss Strong appeared presently, and took her new boarder to his room, asking her niece to carry her pan to the kitchen.

"For we will give you an early dinner after your long walk," she said hospitably bustling about, to bring cool water and fresh towels. "You sent your trunk? I will have it brought up as soon as it comes."

"May," she told her niece, "he is a gentleman, every inch of him, and handsome as a picture!"

"I like his manner" May answered, washing her peas at the sink "Shall I make custard, auntie?"

"If you will, dear! Oh, dear, to think of Cynthia taking this day of all others to act so!"

For Cynthia, the only servant had been detected in the act of passing spoons from the kitchen window to a villainous looking tramp, and the pair had been handed over to the village constable, which accounted for the fact that May was installed assistant cook, until such time as Cynthia could be replaced

"And nobody knows when that will be" said Miss Strong; "for servants at Norton are scarcer than old gold"

None appearing to replace the thieving Cynthia, May was often found in the kitchen not very efficient but willing, and succeeded in many culinary triumphs simply by obeying orders

"I'll make a good cook of you yet," her aunt often told her, and she laughed merrily at the hope. But Lucien Gaylord, enjoying a brief summer holiday, often wished heartily that he might be permitted to live upon bread and milk, if by doing so he could keep May out of the kitchen Whenever she was free she found him waiting for her, and they rested upon the porch, or walked in shady lanes chatting pleasantly, gradually going beyond surface talk, mutually interested and pleased to find so much sympathy of thought and feeling that time sped only too swiftly when they were together

It puzzled Lucien often to find absolutely nothing of rustic awkwardness in this lovely girl, who was self possessed and graceful as if bred in the highest society She was reticent about herself, but very frank about her duties as cook and assistant in the house

Having nothing to hide, Lucien soon unfolded his own life to her, won by her gentle sympathy and evident interest He told her of his boyhood with a wealthy father, who died suddenly leaving nothing of a once handsome fortune of his mother who soon sank under the pressure of sorrow and poverty, of his own position as a clerk in a wholesale dry goods house upon a small salary

Often he told her of the dreams his father's death had scattered the hope of being a great lawyer, or an author moving the world by his pen Yet he was bravely cheerful, hoping to conquer fortune by perseverance and energy

Not until they were fast friends did he tell her all this, and a little later he told her of a new dream a new hope, a love death only could destroy

"Will you let me take back to my drudgery the hope that if I can conquer fortune, you will come to share it?" he asked "Will you be my wife love in that future when I hope to gather about me at least comfort for a home?"

He had wooed her in a straightforward manly fashion and she was not surprised She put her hand in his promising all he asked

He went back to his desk in the autumn but only a week later was offered a better position in the counting house of the great merchant prince, John Burnette

"It is so strange" he wrote to May "Mr Burnette himself seems interested in me though I am an entire stranger to him He watches me and promotes me rapidly seemingly pleased with all I do Darling if this continues our home will soon be secure"

It did continue Mr Burnette a man of grave reserved presence seemed inspired by some deep interest in his new clerk He watched him keenly, moving from department to department in his vast business till he had came to have an insight into every branch He gave him confidential business to transact and put him in the counting house

And Lucien working ever for May strove to meet every demand made upon his brains and hands, giving every attention and straining every power to repay faithfully the confidence reposed in him

Nearly two years had passed, when one morning Mr Burnette called Lucien into his private office closing the door after him

"I am about to make a strange disclosure to you" he said gravely "and you must weigh well what I say to you Up to this time you have known me only as a business man to-day I speak to you as a friend I am a rich man but I have few friends, Lucien Gaylord Shall I count you as one?"

"You honor me," he faltered, overwhelmed with surprise

"I am a father" Mr Burnette said "and my only child is a daughter whose future has been a subject of deep prayerful anxiety I have feared that when I die the wealth I leave would make her the wife of some plausible fortune hunter I have feared that my business would fall to ruin in incompetent hands Often I have hoped to meet at some time an honorable upright man to whom I could teach the secrets of my success and who might succeed to my business I have prayed that when I die I might leave my child under the protecting care of a husband who had not sought her for her wealth a man of pure heart and firm principle Lucien Gaylord I have found the man sought To-day you will dine with me and be introduced to Miss Burnette"

The cry broke from Lucien's lips in such utter amazement that he thought he must dream or his employer was insane

"You!" was the quiet answer

"But it is all impossible" Lucien said slowly regaining his self possession

"Impossible! Why so if I am willing"

"You will think me ungrateful presumptuous but I cannot accede to your noble generous plan Faithful service true friendship I can give you gladly but you must seek another heir another son in law I am not free"

"You refuse my daughter?"

"I have given my love and won a heart I could never betray"

"May I ask where"

"My promised wife is no heiress but a simple country maiden, lovely and gentle I will not weary you, sir with a lover's praise but you will let me say that I have worked for two years with the hope of winning some position that will enable me to offer a home to my wife If you will put me in such a position, you will win my earnest gratitude but I must not think again of the dazzling offer you have made me"

"You refuse to be my son in law—my heir"

"I refuse any offer that makes me a traitor to a pure heart that trusts me"

"It makes it harder to give you up But if I must, at least accept my invitation to dinner, and my friendship"

"Gladly gratefully"

"At six, then, I shall expect you"

Was he awake? Lucien asked himself the question more than once as he pored over his ledgers and added long columns of figures, and wrote business letters Had John Burnette, the millionaire really made him the magnificent proposal still ringing in his ears? Were they both insane?

His head was still whirling as he dressed himself and walked to the splendid Fifth avenue mansion the rich merchant called his home Every luxury money could command met his eyes in the adornment of the wide drawing room Pictures of priceless value hung upon the walls, rare statuary gleamed against velvet curtains, the visitor's feet sank deep in the richest carpets the odor of choice exotics filled the air

Had all this really been placed within his grasp? He was still musing on this when Mr Burnette himself crossed the room

"Have you thought better of your refusal?" he asked

"I can only repeat it sir! My heart my love are no longer at my disposal"

There was a rustle of silk upon the rich carpet, a lady advancing dressed in shimmering, lustrous silks, with rare jewels in her hair and upon her wrists A lady with soft brown eyes and golden curls who was introduced as

"My daughter, Mabel, Mr Gaylord!"

But who was surely, surely, May his own May, niece of Maria Strong, who took summer boarders in a small country village

Mr Burnette had disappeared when Lucien moved his wondering eyes upon May's face, and only the lady of his true love remained

"You will forgive me, Lucien" she said, drawing him to a seat beside her upon a sofa, "if you think I have deceived you, when I tell you how it happened My father spoke only the truth this morning when he told you my future was the only anxiety of his life, I can only tell you his worshipping love for me! When I returned from Norton I told him of your love for me, and my promise to you Knowing you loved me for myself alone, with no knowledge of my position or fortune, I begged my father to send for you at once and tell you the truth, But next to his child my father loves the business he has built up by his own energy and talent He wished to be sure that it would not be ruined in the hands of his son-in-law, and I consented to his test of your capacity It is no small compliment, Lucien for him to tell me he is thoroughly satisfied, willing to trust the future of both his child and his business to you"

"But May, are you not Miss Strong's niece?"

"I am She is my mother's sister! Every summer I have spent some weeks at Norton Still I never have performed any menial work there, excepting during your visit, when there was no servant My aunt has never left home and I take no finery to Norton so that she does not at all realize how different my life here is from my life with her"

"And you who must see so many suitors were willing to give me the treasure of your love?"

"Ah Lucien love is a tyrant! He took us both under his rule in those summer days at Norton, when I was writing to papa of Aunt Maria's boarder and he was hoping and fearing for me But now come to the library and tell him you have reconsidered his offer and will marry that unknown lady you refused so positively only this morning."

"Was that another test May?"

"Not of my seeking. I knew nothing of it till papa told me an hour ago bidding me put on my most captivating dress, to punish you for the refusal of my hand and fortune, by winning your heart against your will"

There was surely a saucy triumph in May's tone deserving of the severe censure of Lucien's warmest kiss so he must not be blamed for giving such punishment Mr Burnette, too, was mischievously fond of referring to that momentous interview after heartily accepting Lucien's consent to all his plans

But he has not yet regretted his offer, nor the position he has given Lucien as full partner in his lucrative business, while every hope of his loving heart is gratified by the home happiness of Mabel, Lucien gladly accepting the proposal to form one family There are two rosy children at the grand nursery and already the fifth anniversary of May's wedding day has passed but there is no regret yet in the happy home as the result of Mr Burnette's Test
